"All Things Bright and Beautiful"

by Annette Uroskie

"All things bright and beautiful" is a show of my watercolors on Yupo paper. Yupo is a synthetic plastic-like surface that can be difficult to master. Water sits on the surface, unlike paper which absorbs it. Patterns are created that can't be controlled. Also, it wipes clean so whites can be pulled out. I fell in love with it and all but two older works are on this surface. Subject matter varies, but remains constant to the medium and beauty as I see it. Flora and fauna, nature, the seasons, and finally, the heavens.

Annette Uroskie

Annette Uroskie has been an Art teacher and practicing artist for fifty years. A graduate of The Pennsylvania State University (BA Art Education) and The Maryland Institute of Art (MFA), she taught Art twenty-three years at The Key School in Annapolis as head of the Visual Art Department. Initially a printmaker, she won many awards and had one woman and group shows in the Baltimore area. She was in the Baltimore Museum of Art Biennial as well as the Peale Museum, Easton Academy of the Arts permanent collection, and Virginia Art League. Her second media was batik, which she sold prolifically in the area, doing shows like Sugarloaf and the Annapolis Arts Festival. Most recently she has been experimenting in digital photography and photoshopped pictures in mixed media as well as experimenting with watercolor on some new papers, including Yupo. She has been Vice-president of the Annapolis Watercolor Club and received three first place awards in recent years in the Annapolis Watercolor Club Juried shows. She also was Juried into the Baltimore Watercolor Society Mid Atlantic Regional Shows in the last four years and received awards in two of them. Her work can be seen on Flickr under Annette's Art flickr.
